

A2 Level Law

We often associate law with “The Bill” or “Crimewatch”, but crime and criminals are only a small part of the legal system. Law affects every aspect of our day-to-day lives, such as our relationships with other people, the workplace, traffic laws and even the food we eat. It’s important to have a basic understanding of what conduct is acceptable and unacceptable in the eyes of the law. You should also study Law if you are interested in how law is made in the UK, how to solve legal problems, what lawyers do, or how to determine a person’s innocence or guilt.
